The Taylor Name

The Taylor name has been a part of the US well servicing industry for more than 60 years. In 1965, Oscar Taylor, his brother, and father founded Taylor Well Service in Drumright, Oklahoma, and they built their first well service rig a year later. Through the decades, the Taylor brand of product became recognized in the oilfield and water well industries for their high performance, durable construction, and industry leading customer service.

Taylor Rig and Equipment continues this legacy, supporting the industry with cost effective-high quality equipment, service, refurbishing, and recertifications. We support rigs, frac & stim pumps, and most other types of oilfield and water well equipment.

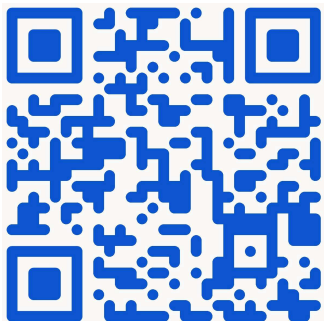

Taylor Rig and Equipment provides parts, technical service, major repair, and refurbishing for most types of oilfield and water well equipment. We offer in-house Cat IV and mobile Cat III mast inspections for most popular rig brands. We also offer full in-house technical design services.

Our Passion

We are passionate about providing safe, efficient, and economical equipment for oil, gas, and water development industries. We believe in the importance of these industries and the resources they produce as they are essential to humankind, the American way of life, and a strong national economy.

Our Purpose

Our purpose is to maximize equipment life and minimize the investment our customer must make in their equipment fleet. We do this by providing the most trusted equipment and services in the industry.
